The men, who made the attempt to escape, are:
Walter Turpin, of Lynchburg. He was sent to the "pen" for housebreaking and burglary. He is now serving his second term of five years, and also an extra year for escaping. He halfs from Lynchburg, and was captured in Georgelown, Del., in February of last year.

Joseph McGlvens (alias Scabeld), of Alleghany, county, and formerly of this city, is serving a three year term for housebreaking and burglary and has been in prison only a week.

W. G. Donahue, perhaps one of the most desperate men in the penitentiary, was placed there for a term of ten years, having been convicted of robbing the balik at Rocky Mount, Va., recently.

While it is not believed that he participated in the actual cutting of the bars, it is thought that he was the instigator of the plans for the escape. fair in any way.

The men are all white, and are considered to number among the most darling criminals in the prison. Turpin is a skilled burglar, and has already escaped from a prison. He is considered to be one of the eleverest now confined in the profilentary. and 90. And the cutting was done in the one occupied by Turpin-90-and he was assisted by McGivens, who occupied the Any Lady, Anywhere, assisted by McCivens, who occupied the next cell to him, and had to cut a hole through the wall so as to enable him to jom Turpin in the work.

He "Tipped" the Guards.

The guards had been informed that the escape was going to be attempted and four men were stationed at the window of the cell accupied by the men. Each of the cell occupied by the men. Each officer was armed with a doubt-sate of shotguin, ready to give the criminals a warm reception when they dropped from the window. Before they had completed their work a convict named Hamlin, from Accomac, gave the alarm, which felled that salars.

Guard Williams was making his rounds on Tier 2 about 3 o'clock, on the western side of the building, and as he approached the cell occupied by Turpin and Hamlin, he was startled by the cries of Ham-from the coll and turned him over to a guard, who took him to the office. Captain Willis came to the seene with several guards, and took the men to the office and then made a search of the cell, which unearthed the outfit of tools, including the saws, the imitation pistol and the rope made of old blankets. They also discovered a suit of clothes, which had been dyed black. It was a convict suit and black shop pollsh, stolen from the shop shop, had been used to ac-the shoe shop, had been used to ac-complish this, complish this.

It is said that the men were not engaged more than four hours in cutting the three-inch bars, although it is claimed that Turpin did not go to work on Tuesday, having been excused on account of sickness, as was also McGivins, and that they did the cutting at various times throughout the day.

Hamlin was awakened about 11 o'clock last night by the cutting of the saw, and Hamlin was awakened about 11 o'clock last night by the cutting of the saw, and he distinguished Turpin sitting in the window. He asked him what was the matter, and Turpin replied that he was suffering with a headache and was smoking, hoping that it would relieve it. Hamlin went to sleep, and was again aroused about 3 o'clock, and he again asked the man what he was doing. He also saw McGivins in the cell, he having come through the hole in the wall.

"Fixing to duck." Want to go along?" asked Turpin.

"Fixing to 'duck." Want to go along?" asked Turpin.
"No, I am in for five years, and this is enough for me," said Hamilin 'Weil, if you don't go, don't squeal, or I will cut your throat from ear to ear." Hamilin them gave the alarm and the guard came to the scene. Hamilin gave the alarm not because he thought his term would be shortened, but it is believed he did this on account of the lateness of the hour and the improbability of succe. He thought he would, in this event, gain something by giving the alarm.

in this event, gain something by giving the alarm.
Captain Morgan, the assistant superintendent of the penitentiary, who has direct charge of the prison, says the men must have secreted the saws in their shoes. One of the saws was evidently taken in from outside. Had the men reached the ground they would have been filled with bullets from the guns of the guards, who were in waiting for them.

The three men were placed in solitary confinement yesterday, and will be kept there until this morning, when they will return to work. While there they will be given bread and water as their diet.

They will be brought before the Circuit court at its next session and answer to They will be brought before the Circuit Court at its next session and answer to the charge of attempting to escape.

When seen yesterday Superjotendent Bolling, of the penitentiary, stated that he had feared an attempt at escape from the convicts for more than six weeks, as they were in quite a restless state over the prespect of being transferred to the magnificent new cell-building, which is absolutely burgiar-proof. He said further that they realized that once they are confined there all hope of escape is useless, and therefore it is thought that it was this that caused the men to make the attempt to gain their freedom yesterday. In fact, Turpin stated that he would rather take the chances in making his escape than to stay in the penitentiary to die there.

Begin a Building Movement.

It was announced some time ago that the Railway Young Men's Christian Association, was making an effort to secure 500 members, with assurances of contributions in that event to provide for the construction of a handsome home of its own. Secretary Thomas and his co-workers have now succeeded in raising the membership to the figure named, and the campaign for funds with which to come struct a building to cost upwards of $40,000 will soon be begun.

With a building of its own in some central location, the Railway Association we'd be enabled to greatly extend the scope of its work and to give many more men the privileges of membership. At present the membership is confined almost wholly to the employes and officers of the Chesapeake and Onlo and the Scabbard Air Line, its quarters being in the Main Street Station, entered only by these two lines.

The Railway Association will operate an excursion to Buckroe Beach July 23d at a low rate, and inducements are being offered to members of the association and their familles and to those who become members.
